PANAMA, Teb. 18, 1870. the United States steamer Nipsic, Commander Selfridge, of the Davien surveying expedition, ar Mil the 17th, repairing machinery, when she left for Caledonia Bay, there to commence the great undertaking of making a thorough and complete survey of the Isthmus. The Nipsic left at Aspinwall the pilot whom she brought with her from New York. as he was too ill to proceed further. In his stead she took Captain Hayes, of Aspinwall, an American who for many years past has been commanding small trading vessels to that port, and who is thor oughly familiar with the coast. The bears with her the best wishes of the good people of the lathmus, who half with delight the prospect of better times shadowed forth in the Darien Canal enterprise. My last communi-cation, sent forward by the Liverpool steamer Mexican, which sailed on the 8th inst. for Key West, contained dates from Bogota to the 17th of January, stating that the terms of the new treaty for the ng of a canal across the Isthmus had been fully agreed on by the representatives of the United States and Colombia, and that the treaty had been drawn up, and only awaited the return of General Huribut to Bogota to be signed. Since then a steamer from Carthagena has arrived, but no later dates have been received. The canal treaty will be one of the first subjects brought before it, and will no doubt meet with a favorable reception. Colombians in general are most theroughly disgusted with the action of the last Congress in rejecting the Cushing treaty.

The nee monopoly, or rather the exclusive privilege to sell ice on this istimans for the ensaing three years, was disposed of by public auction on the last inst. In the Government House in this city and awarded to the Boston ice Company, who have supplied the Isthmus for many years past, for the sam of 575 per month. This granting of monopolies and interfering with mercantile pursuits by the government morder to "raise the wind" temporarily is meeting with great opposition. Out of the fee privilege the government gain $900 a year taxes more than previously, and the dear public are obliged to pay a cent a pound more for ice—an article which is now, here, an accual necessity. The flour monopoly will not, I think, be granted. If it is a revolution will be the result.

Suffering as we are from duit times and bad legislation, it is grathfying to see that something is being done to improve the city. The gas works are almost competed, and will be at work in a few weeks. The plaza is being graded and improved. Many buildings are being graded and improved. Many buildings are being reflicted and enlarged, and the introduction of water is tasked of. The government wishes to make a contract for supplying the city with potable water, and advertises asking for proposals for same to be offered till 25th inst.

tract for supplying the city with potable water, and advertises asking for proposals for same to be offered till 2stn inst.

The Nipsic returned to Aspinwall last evening. She went as far as Porto Beilo, some ciphteen mies, and stopped there to get laborers, but could not procure any, and had to return to Aspinwall to get the number needed. Why the offerer in charge of the expedition should have selected such an out-of-the way piace as Porto Beilo as a labor mart whilst the Isthmus is overflowing with idlers is more than I can imagine. Another week is thus lost, and, as I stated in a previous letter, half the dry season than I can imagine. Another week is thus lost, and as I stated in a previous letter, half the dry sensor will have passed before the surveying party get to work. The Nipsic will sail again early in the coming week, about the 21st inst. I understand the reasor given by the Forto Bello laborers for not joining the expedition was that they were afraid of the Indians.

The steamer Salvagor, from the Central American coast, arrived in this port on the morning of the 17th inst., with fifteen days' later dates from the different republics.

The revolutionary troubles which have existed in this republic for two years past with but little intermission have at last ended, and the leader of the revolutionary party, the noted Scrapio Cruz, bas been killed. The particulars brought down by the steamship Salvador are as follows:-Cruz, at the head of some four hundred men, after various successes in the Allos, determined to march on the capital. He had proceeded as far as Palencia, only six leagues from the city. Here he was surprised by a government force under command of Briga dier General Solares on the 23d of January. The Congress of this republic assembled at the capital on the 22d of January. President Duehas in his message gives a very favorable account of the state of the country. On education and progress of the republic in general he says:—Every attention has been paid to forward public instruction. The chairs of the universities are filled by able professors, and furnished with everything required, particularly those relating to medicine and surgery. We have a botanic gurden and museum, which receive daily contributions of specimens from the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms. The fitte aris have been encouraged and aided; our academy teaches or awing, painting, music and litaography, and has everything necessary for the study or such important branches of education. Good carriage roads exist and are in process of construction throughout the State. The new mole at libertad is doing great service, and another is constructing at Acajutia, as well as more warehouses at Libertad. An electric telegraph is gliso being constructed between La Libertad and this capital.

Congress met en the 2d inst. The chief work to come before the session may be briefly summed up as follows:—The questions to be discussed are four, all of which are of importance to the republic. They are:—Judicial reform, in order to prevent the present delays in the courte; to examine and determine the Interoceanic Canal contract, celebrated in San José between the government and the representative of Nicaragua in June, 1869; to examine and decide upon a contract made by the government with Don Joaquin Fernandes for the construction of a trainway from San José to one of the Pacific ports of the republic; and, Inaily, to decide upon the decree of the President annualing the contract made cans and Are Brought Into Court to Tell All They Know About It-The Great O'Mahony's "Heart of Hearts"-A "Gineral's" Character.

An interesting case came up before Judge Monel and a jury in the Superior Court, trial term, yes-terday, in which the Fenian leaders and fire caters play a prominent role. Herman Stura is the plain-tiff, and the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company the defendants. The plaintiff brought suit to recover $30,000 on a policy of insurance for $30,000 on the cargo of the schooner S. T. Keese. The policy was issued by the defendents for $30,000, and other insurance companies likewise issued policies amounting in the aggregate to $163,000. The cargo was valued at $213,000, and the present suit was brought as a test case for all the others. The cargo consisted of military goods and equipments, which the plaintiff was transmitting to Vera Cruz Mexico, for sale. The Keese was totally lost in the Gulf of Mexico, at the distance of about 350 miles from Vera Cruz, her port of destination. The de fence set up is unseaworthiness and deviation; that the goods were never on board; that they were very much overvalued, and that the vessei was lost by conspiracy between the shipper,of the goods and the aptain of the Keese. The case has been on trial for the past eight days, conspiracy between the shipper, of the goods and the captain of the Keese.

The case has been on trial for the past eight days, and large numbers of witnesses have been examined, heduding Bernard F. Mullen, who was becretary of Mintary and Naval Affairs of the Fernan organization, and from whom some $30,000 worth of the goods were purchased. Colonel Join O'Mahony was also examined, and testified that he had seen president of the organization or brotherhood, and admitted its members were under an oeligation of secrecy.

Colonel O'Rorke, who acted as treasurer under the Roberts wing, was called to the stand by defendants' counsel, and in answer to a question asked the Judge whether he was giving testimony in this trial or being tried himself as a member of the Fenian organization.

Colonel O'Mahony was examined, among other things, as to the character of General Mullen, whom he professed to have been on friendly terms with for a length of time. It appeared that feeling in the Fenian organization at one time ran pretty high, and the question was asked the witness whether he had professed to be on terms of friendship then with Mullen. He rephed no, but that he had no feelings of enmity against him.

"Air I but," said counsel, "do you love him in your heart of hearts?"

This question the Court excused the witness from answering, amid laughter in court.

Colonel O'Horke said he never heard anything against Mullen's character except that he was called "tieneral." (Laughter).

The testimony of the Fenian witnesses disclosed the fact that their organization had on hand in the city of New York 22,000 to 26,000 stand of arms. Considerable testimony taken on commission in Mexico, with reference to the political situation of anians there, and the necessity whom existed for military goods, was produced on the trial, and established the fact that in May, 1887, the so-called liberal government of Mexico was overthrown by the Juarez or revolutionary government, and that the so-called usurper, Maximilian, lost his life. It also

This interesting case will be summed up to-day, and will, probably, be given to the jury this afternoon. Considerable interest is manifested in the

ANOTHER JERSEY RAILROAD GUIRAGE.

A Passenger Thrown Off a Car on the New Jersey Central Railroad-Almost a Repetition of the Hackensack Bridge Affair.

The public indignation at the fate of Lane, who was put off a train on the Hackensack bridge, and who was afterwards drowned while trying to get across the bridge, brought the conductors of the Jersey radroads to a sense of their duty, and the public have heard but little of any such high-handed proceedings ever since.

A short time previous to the Lane affair a poor colored woman was compelled by a conductor on the New Jersey Central to sit in a smoking car where she was forcibly detained to the end of her journey, and not long afterwards a gentleman traveiling with by the conductor with expulsion from the car be cause the tickets bore a wrong date, even though the lady assured the conductor positively that the

the lady assured the conductor positively that the neckets were purchased that same day. The gentleman, however, seeing that the lady's emphatic declaration produced no impression on the dogmatic gentleman of the brass buttons, rose from his seat and in a defiant tone said:—"Put me cut if you dare." This sequetched the official.

A case occurred last Saturday on the New Jersey Central Radiroad which according to the statement of the passenger concerned, is a most grievous one, and is to be brought before the courts. The passenger, whose name is E. A. Chasteney, purchased a ticket at New York for Dunelien, and left by the train at half-past four in the atternoon. Being accompanied by a friend, the two tickers were retained by the latter, and were both punched by the conductor, W. C. Rand, when he made his first round of examination. Soon after Mr. Chasteney left his seat in order to meet a gentleman whom he knew to be in another car, and while moving along he was accosted by the conductor, who called for his ticket. Mr. Chasteney explained that his friend, who was seaded in a certain car, had both tickets, and he offered to procure it; but the explanation was unsatisfactory and the passenger was sentenced to expulsion. The bell was ring, the train stackened its pace, and Mr. Chasteney was put off the car by the conductor and a brakeman named A. E. Dinsmore. As if expulsion was not sufficient, they called him, it is alleged, most opportunis off the car by the conductor and a braxeman named A. E. Dinsmore. As if expulsion was not sufficient, they called him, it is alleged, most opprobrious names. He no sooner reached the ground than he sprang on the platform of the next car, when he was pushed off by another brakeman and rolled down the embankment. The passengers were looking out at the straigle, and among them Mr. Chasteney's friend, who rushed up to the conductor and produced the tickets. Mr. Chasteney was then allowed to get on the last car and proceed to his destination. This happened about a mile from Roselle, and when the passengers learned the nature of the difficulty they were so incensed that many of them gave their names and addresses to Mr. Chasteney as witnesses in whatever proceedings he may take.

The mystery attending the death of John Merkle, the German, late of 459 Tenth avenue, who was fatally beaten by unknown rowdies, near his resi dence, on the night of the 2d ult., as heretofore published in the HERALD, has not yet been cleared up. Coroner Keenan was to have renewed the investigation at ten o'clock yesterday morning; but at the request of the detectives of the Sixteenth precinct, was required another day in which to operate, the case was postponed till to-day, Several parties have been afrested on suspicion of being concerned in the murder, and witnesses will be examined to show what part (if any) the prisoners took in the matter. It was stated on reliable information that deceased had been murder-ously assaulted on two previous occasions by the same gang of murderous highwaymen who indicted the deadly injuries upon him. Had the fact of the assault been promptly reported to Captain Williamsou, of the Sixteenth precinct, the guilty parties might have been secured, but the friends of deceased said nothing about it till after his death, thus giving the guilty parties nearly two weeks time in which to escape or frame a defence in case of their arrest. Coroner Keenan was to have renewed the investiga

BEN BUTLER.

Pag Memination for the Presidency by Jones.

The Famous Meeting at Union League Hall, Washington-What It Amounted To and All About It - The Speakers and the Audience - The Serenade and the Fizzle.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20, 1870. Ben Butler has been put in the field for the Presidential succession. Captain William Jones made the nomination at a meeting here to-night, and Cap-tain Jones (from Alabama) did is unanimously. That is, Jones did all the affirmative voting and no-body voted against him. Therefore it is entirely proper and strictly true to state that Butler's nomination for the Presidency next term was unani

Now, I think it won't be space badly occupied in your columns to explain the prelimmaries to the important movement, and what occurred subsequent to the bold out de Butier made by the destined to be immortal Captain Jones (of the Horse Marines, as I am credibly informed).

Two days before the event an advertisement appeared in some of the local papers here setting forth that the friends of General Butter (including Senator Wilson, God bless the markh would meet in convention at Union League Hall on Saturday evening Much wonder was thereby occasioned. Everybody hereabout was curious to learn wherefore people amicably disposed to the Essex statesman wanted to gather together in force at the hall mentioned. Everybody wanted to learn the names of the great Among those in search of enlightenment on these points was included your own correspondent. This is wby your own feit obliged to be on hand to-night at Union League Hail, in order to be posted about

When your correspondent (which it is I) arrived at the aforesaid ball he found much noise. The sounds of a brass band were loud above everything else. articulate and inarticulate, including the street cars. Getting up three, four or five flights of stairs, where the meeting was in ses-sion, enabled the unmetodious sounds to be heard and less deligated in. The band was exclusively African both in its performers and numusical selections. The audience was slim in proportion and much mixed in colors. There were wo Africans in the very front seat, then several penches unoccupied, and behind these the buik of the audience, composed of whites and blacks, and particularly all the band, entirely black, which was away back by the door. Senator Pool, of North Carolina: Congressman Cobb. Mr. George F. Butler Carolina; Congressman Coop, Mr. George F. Busier mephew of the Essex statesman), Congressman Bennett, of New York, and some few other Con-gressional celebrities were among the audience. The balance of the attendants was made up of ex-soiders and sailors who were under obligations to

Ben Butier.

On the platform were two tables, three chairs, two American flags, one painting at presco, and three men destined to occupy three prominent positions in the annais of immoriality. These three individuals were Captain Horse Marine Jones, Dr. Snodgrass and Dr. Lockwood. The first was never heard of before to-night, the second is a severely repentant doctor, who has joined the legal profession, and the third is well known here as a joint believer in medicine and lemale rights.

pentant doctor, who has joined the legal profession, and the third is well known here as a joint believer in medicine and female rights.

Captain William Horse Marine Jones was the master spirit of the occasion. He it was who out of his own purse and out of his admiration for deneral Butler defrayed the entire expenses of the occasion. Captain Horse Marine Jones called the meeting to order, nominated the presiding differ and elected him, called for the speakers and spoke for them, named our next President, voted for him, declared him elected, and mangurated him on the shoulders of four-stallwart negroes.

Jones made Dr. J. E. Snodgrass chairman of the meeting, and, though Snodgrass scanier no of the meeting, and, though Snodgrass scanier to be in somewhat of a mist about the whole affair, he accepted the honor without qualification, made a speech and then put the question—"is there anybody here who wants to talk in favor of Butler?" Horse Marine Jones emphatically declared there was, and proceeded to make a speech. He opened by inviting anybody to come forth to talk, and for the aumence to come further forward to hear. Then Jones modestly declared he was no speaker, and wished those who were speakers to "step up to the captain's office and get their change," which was an allegorical mode of telling shent orators that it they would only make themselves known be (Jones) and the rest of the meeting, including the band, would gladly see them get on the patform and speak.

But the silent orators remained dumb, and therefore Jones left hispired to speak. Jones said that he was not experienced in getting up great public gatherings by no sort of means. Had he known more about such matters the present meeting would not one so sim. But he was an admirrer of Benjamin F. Butler, and that was why he had navigated the ceptus of his private parse and resolved to pay the expenses of the meeting for the purpose of doing honor to the Essex statesman. Benjamin F. Butler, in all (Jones) opinion, was the greatest man hydre of doing purpose of doing honor to the Essex statesman. Benjamin F. Bunter, in his (Jones) to minon, was the greatest man inving or dead. He was the greatest executive individual now ornamenting the globe. He (Butter) had more executive ability than any man living; and he (Jones) begged leave to nominate him (Butter) for Fresident of the United States, to be inaugurated a little over three years hence. "Ben augurated a little ray of hence he was the little say of them knew in their washington, the dark clouds were dispelled. We's saw a little spot of sunshine—we's discrined a little ray of noge in the gioomy luture. Didn't we's, boys? (Great cheers and laughter, participated in by Butler's nephew.) yous see, though I may not use good grammar, though I may not be an orator, I am a true friend of Butler, a personal friend of Butler, a gernest admirer of Ben Butler; one who washes to take sone steps to thank and honor him. I tell you, boys and Mr. Charman, Butler is the greatest man of the age. (Applause and jeers.) He is the man who saved this country. (More cheers and tens, between the sum of the reboliton han anyb sided, and Snodgrass (the chairman) arose and made a speech. He said he was not so enthusiastically disposed as Jones towards Butler. But, neverthe-less, be admired Butler bugely, and particularly for disposed as Jones towards futter. But, neverthe-less, he admired Butler hugely, and particularly for his moral courage in defending Whittemore, the South Carolina carpet-baggish sinner. He went on to depict, in glowing colors, the career of Butler in New Orleans, New York and elsewhere, and de-clared that Butler everywhere was right and trumphant, and that he seemed to be one of those men designed by Providence to perform an impor-tant duty. Butler was always the right man in the right blace.

imminiant, and that he seemed to be one of those men designed by Providence to perform an important duty. Butier was always the right man in the right judge.

Dr. Snodgrass concluded after saying something more and then Jones came to the rescue anew. Again he extended an invitation to the irrends of Butler to come lorward, and again nobody in the hail (off the piatform) responded. But Dr. Lockwood, of the corps of female righters, seeing that a vast chain was about to occur thought he would check it. Lockwood got on his feet, cleared his throat, and prepared to deliver a pro-Butler oration. Several people thereupon commenced to grown and to cry out in an agony of deprecancy, "Onlord onlinow, Doctor, don't do it! Please don't!" Dr. Lockwood was recognized as one who was in the habit of indicting prosy orations on the habitues of Union League Itali, and hence the growns and "out ons?" But Lockwood was proof against such mid remonstrances, and headed been not. He went at his speech undismayed, and spoke it to the letter without a finch.

When he concluded the African oand was again let loose, to the entire amazement of the gas lights, which persisted in going out at every blast of the discordant but powerful wind instruments.

Dr. Crane, who sat away back in the hall, then became inspired. Without an invitation from either Snodgrass or Jones to "come forward" he rose and inquired what might be the precise object of the gathering. Was it to ealogize Butter? If so, why now more than any other time? Had Butler been adused lately more butterly than formerly? He was not aware Butter had. Wherefore this meeting of energy particular use in having a meeting just at this time merely to say that. Was the object to nominate General Butter for President? If so, with all due respect for Jones and Snodgrass, he rather thanght it a little premature. Such action he believed calculated to impure General Butter rather than meeting to it.

opposed to it, Dr. Snodgrass, the chairman stated very mildly that the meeting was a free one. Everybody pre-tent had a right to his say. Anybody had a right to make a nomination for the Fresidency. As for himself, he was free to say that he was not entirely so enthusiastic in Butler's cause as his friend Jones. But Jones had a perfect right to nominate Butler if he chose, and in point of fact Jones had done so. Was there anybody thereby hunt? If so, let him bleed. As for hunself, he was free to assert that he had not yet thought of anyoody as a candidate for President, neither had it entered his noddle who was the proper party for the next Mayor of Washington. His friend Crane, however, who was opposed to nominating for the Presidency, was well known to be very much interested about the Mayoralty. This remark of Snodgrass about the Mayoralty and Crane was considered a decided hit. Crane is a candidate for that office, and Snodgrass effectually silenced him by making the alidation.

Some other remarks were subsequently made, when it occarred to the bfillish gepths of Jones that it would be a capital thing to go to Butler's house and snodgrass, accompanied by the band and a few colored urbins, started off on the musical mission. They went through the streets in magnificent style, and on the way picked up a parson. Dennison by name, who agreed to do the thiroducing of the crowd to the powerfully "executare" Butler. In due time they arrived at Butler's residence, and inen occurred what I telegraphed you has hight. Butler made a speech of gittlefully generalities. He delivered it with as muca coolneys and solemnity as though he were addressing some vast anderuce, and at the conclusion abruptly withdrew, leaving the secendaters in a perpexing wate of doubt whether or not they had second to had not be must be alleged the town. It is generally regarded as a magnificent fixic, but some rew declare that to slight the little ball has been set in motion at Union League Hall, when will continue to roll and roll and morease in size until finally it reaches the dimension's calculated to verify Jones powerful declaration that "I tell you what it is, boys, ben Butler must be our next President."

BOARD OF ASSISTANT ALDERMEN. BOARD OF ASSISTANT ALDERMEN.
President RELLY called the Boald of Assistant Aldermen to order yesterday at two o'clock. There was a large attendance of disinterested and patrolic citizens. After the usual overture the play began. The screaming farce of "Municipal Benevolence" was first introduced. A smail Assistant Alderman, in short coattails, proposed and a heavy party seconded a resolution donating $1,634 to the society for the relief of the rupurred and cripplica. The resolution was seconded without the slid of a promiser. prompter.

Fifth avenue, with the above restrictions.

The Board concurred with the Board of Aldermen in directing that Fifth avenue, from Washington square to Fifty-nint street, be paved with the pavement known as the Stafford Pavement, the price not on exceed the sum of six dottars per square yard, under the direction of the Croton Aqueduct Department.

A resolution was introduced empowering the complacent Clerk of the Common Council to exhaust his remaining onergies in the completion of the Manual 1870, and to worry the corporation printer with an order for 15,000 copies of the same. This was very satisfactory; but another Assistant Alderman ordered an amendment giving the miserable pittance of $2,000 to each of the unfortunate clerks doomed to compile the Manual, so the whole matter was laid over. Some outsiders say that $20,000 each would over the council compensation for the clerkly historians of the Corporation. It is to be hoped that the latter estimate will be considered correct by the Assistant Aldermen.

A petition from property owners along the line of Fifteenth street irom Fourth avenue to the East river, asking for the blessings of Eeignan pavement, was received and laid over. A petition from persons owning property in Twenty-eighth and Thirty-second screets, asking that curbing and grading be done in the streets lacing their property, was received and laid over. WHOLESALE SNEAK THIEVING.

A Dangerous Woman Captured-Seven Complaints Against Her-Large Quantity of

Goods Recovered. A case of squak threving of more than usual importance came up yesterday before Jusuce Scott, at asex Market Police Court, the defendant in which has been operating in various parts of the city in an stealing large quantities of valuable property. The discovery of the thief was almost accidental, and but for the energy of detectives Jarboe and Shalvey, of the Seventh precinct, nothing of any great importance would have resulted from the arrest.

Late in the evening of Saturday last Moore Mulligan, residing at No. 20 Montgomery atreet, had oc-casion to enter his parior, and was very much surcasion to enter his parior, and was very much surprised to find on entering that a strange woman was secreted therein. The gas not deing lit, he went for a match, and on re-entering the room he met the strange woman, about 15 leave. He asked her business, when she stated she was looking for a sister. The woman was held till some investigation of the room could be made, when it was ascertained that a box of jewelry containing articles to the value of eighty-five dollars had been removed. The woman was asked where the box was, when she informed Mulligan exactly where she had placed it. An officer was sent for and the woman arrested, and when taken to the Seventh ward station house site gave her name as Mary C. Wilkins and her residence as 25 Goerck street.

cer was sent for and the woman arrested, and when taken to the Seventh ward station house site gave her name as Mary C. Wilkins and her residence as 26 Goerck street.

Officers Jarboe and Shalvey at once suspected that the woman was in the habit of carrying on business as a sneak thief, and therefore determined to visit her residence. They were rewarded by finding secreted in various parts of the apartments a large quantity of jewelry, ciotung, ac., of the total value of from $2,000 to $3,000. In addition to the goods a number of pawn tickets also calling for valuables were discovered. The officers at once set about to work up their case, and as a result six other complainants were found who yesterday identified portions of the property and made complaints against the prisoner. In all these cases the woman had pursued the same plan, taking advantage of an open door to walk linto a house and "go through" some room in it. The following were the charges made against Mrs. Mary C. Wikins:—James Hunt, of No. 305 Henry street, charged her with stealing, on the 24th of February, dresses and jewelry valued at $240; Catharine Curias, on the 7th of February, with stealing cotting to the value of $192; Benjamin H. Rogers, of 805 Fifth street, on the 18th September, jewelry valued at $106; Eather Rudman, of 283 Madson street, on 18th 222 February, linen valued at $242, and Blien smith, of 26 Gouverners street, jewelry and clothing valued at $244, on the 21st of February.

the 21st of February.

Several other complainants were in court, and their names were taken to appear as witnesses against the prisoner at her trial at the Court of General Sessions, at which court she was held to appear. The woman admits all the charges made against the and her counsellors, Messrs. Howe & Hummel, waived any preliminary examination.
